We are switching up the BOM a little this year. We want to focus not just on quilting, but on YOU. We found this mood quilt idea from Briawna Ainge Hugh & Paige Holden on Instagram and think it's a great year-long project for all of us. You asked for a mystery, and this is it! Who knows what moods will strike you this year. You also asked for scrap friendly - this is it! Assign each mood a color, sort your scrap piles, and your mood quilt will come together in no time.

The idea is at the end of every day, you choose an overall mood from the list on the sheet, then color it in. Each triangle in the half-square triangles counts as a day, as do full squares. Start at the top left, finish each square, then move to the right each subsequent day. We recommend you sew each row as you color it so you can make progress throughout the year.

Be sure to post your progress pictures often – each row is equivalent to at least 2 weeks' worth of days – try and post a picture after each row! For our Instagram users, use #moodquilt2018 as your tag so we can all view each other's progress.
